WITHIN THE DEAD LINE

The "Standard" Reporter Visits the Coxey Camp in Helena.

THE BOYS SEEM TO ENJOY IT

How the Food is Cooked and Served—The Order Has Been Given to Shoot Anyone Who Tries to Escape.

Special Dispatch to the Standard.

HELENA, May 5.—The STANDARD correspondent visited the grounds of the Lewis and Clarke County Fair association to-day, where the main forces of Hogan's army are being held as United States prisoners under a guard of federal troops. In 1877 the buildings on these grounds were used as temporary barracks by the Third United States Infantry for nearly a year, who came from Fort Douglas, Utah, and some changes were then made by the government whereby structures originally erected for the purposes of annual county fair exhibits and race meetings were made to serve the turn of a military encampment.

Thus it comes that the place is readily adaptable to its present needs and indeed its aspect at this time, with its cordon of armed and uniformed sentry lines and flags fluttering from the peaks of the long, low, white-washed buildings, is not unlike that of many of the early cantonments within which the first fighting regiments of Indian campaigning days were quartered on the frontier.

The troops acting as guard over Montana's captive Coxey army are companies A, C and H, of the Twenty-second Infantry, belonging at Fort Keogh and under the command of Major C. H. Liscum.

The STANDARD representative found an armed watch at the locked entrance way, and on presentation of his permit from the United States marshal the corporal of the guard was summoned, and in a few moments the gates were swung open. An animated scene presented itself within.

At intervals sentinels, fully equipped and with muskets on shoulders, were slowly pacing up and down within the palings immediately surrounding the main buildings were scattered groups of Coxey men lounging about and lazily watching the progress of a ball game going on among a large party of soldiers in lightest of fatigue dress. Just outside in the opening, on the left of the entrance to the enclosure are the tents of the officers and those of their cooks and messmen.

A visit to the prison enclosure reminds one of a military field camp with the open fires above which are swung steaming pots, and the crude ovens reeking with the breath of baking beans and soft bread. The commissariat is in the hands of the United States marshal and was found complete and well stored. Deputy J. G. Simpson was found in charge and assistants were busy issuing rations of beef, lard, rice, potatoes, onions, coffee, sugar, beans, flour, pepper, salt and baking powder, soap, as called for, and wood.

The ration is considerably in excess of that of the soldier, as may be seen by the article flour, of which the army issue is 18 ounces, 30 being here allowed. In all respects the food is the same as the standard issue of the military commissariat.

The organization of the commonwealth itself aids in the distribution of the supplies, as the captains of cantons, consisting of 12 men each, make the requisitions and each send a man for the supplies every day.

A detail of the commonwealthers themselves assist in the issue rooms, and upon inquiry from them the men were found to be entirely satisfied with their treatment. The army is quartered in the buildings while their guard occupy tents. Each squad of 12 selects its own cooks and helpers.

The spirit prevailing among the prisoners appears tractable and the officers in command of the troops speak in high terms of the discipline which their own system appears to maintain among them.

On the whole the imprisoned members of the Montana column of the Coxey crusade appear to be well content with their surroundings and its tattered denational contingent are really enjoying a summer picnic.

A strict watch is maintained over the army and orders have been given to shoot any man who defies the challenge and crosses the dead line. So far no sign of mutiny has manifested itself, but it is, of course, not reasonable to suppose that the integrity of an organization so loosely ordered can long be sustained, and some trouble may follow. It can, however, be controlled without difficulty.

As the STANDARD has announced General Hogan and Camp Orator Cunningham have been released under bail, but the three other leaders still remain in care of Sheriff Curtis. The hearing of the men is ordered for Thursday.

BASIN MINES.

A New Company of Influential Men Organized.

BUTTE, May 5.—A recent addition to the mining industry of Basin is the Hope Extension Gold Mining company, which has recently been organized to work the Cedarwell and Moonlight lodes. These properties lie southwest of the famous Hope and upon the same vein which the Hope company is now working, and from which so much rich ore is being taken.

The stock of the company is divided into 400,000 shares of $1 each, and 100,000 shares have been set aside to be disposed of for development purposes. Work has already been commenced, and it is the intention of the company to push the development of the property as rapidly as possible. The vein will not be cut until the shaft has attained a depth of 100 feet, when the owners are confident that they will encounter a body of ore fully as rich as that found in the Hope and Katie mines.

The officers of the company are: Dr. A. H. Mitchell, president; George H. Tong and Lucien Eaves of Portland, vice presidents; E. A. Nichols, secretary; Walter Mackay, treasurer; C. E. Gable, manager. A block of the treasury stock will be at once placed upon the market and sold at bed-rock price.

The Eye an Interesting Subject.

BUTTE, May 5.—Crowds of people obstruct the sidewalk in front of Leys, the jeweler's store in the Owsley block, and fix their gaze on an interesting object in the center of the window. Surrounded by a beautiful and complete display of optical goods on a neat drape, is a perfect model of the human eye enlarged one hundred times. The model is made so as to be dissected with ease, showing successively the sclerotic and choroid coats and cornea, retina, iris, pupil crystalline lens, aqueous and vitreous humors, the muscles, nerves and blood vessels. Quite a number of interested people have enquired of Mr. Leys about the action and uses of the different muscles and lenses etc., and are always accorded a full explanation in every particular, as Mr. Leys (who holds a diploma from one of the best optical colleges in America) has made quite a study of the eye and is thoroughly versed in the science of optics. Mr. Leys says no one can afford to have their eyesight defective, as it is a very important factor in life.

Genuine Foster kid gloves 5 or 7 hook, or mousquetaire, $1.50 and $2.00 qualities for 95c a pair at M. J. Connell's Monday and Tuesday. Special low rates also quoted on ladies' calico and outing flannel, wrappers and waists.

The Best Yet.

BUTTE, May 5.—Part IX. of the Pictorial World's Fair is on hand and ready for delivery. Among the views are the Spanish caravels Pinta and Nina and the fireworks at the fair grounds, July 4, the Chinese Joss house, the Columbia obelisk, group of Soudanese and Nubians, entrance to the electricity building, interior of the electricity building, the viking ship, the Columbian fountain, Guatemala building, Pennsylvania building, interior of the India building, statue of the "Indian," the Germania fountain, under the government building dome, etc. Sunday's coupon and 20 cents gets the part.

Connell's will be the place before all others on Monday and Tuesday to buy your gloves. Genuine Foster kids, mousquetaire or 5 or 7 hooks for 95c. These are the regular $1.50 and $2.00 qualities. Very special values on ladies' wrappers and waists for the same two days.

Mrs. Furay's Death.

BUTTE, May 5.—The death of Mrs. William F. Furay occurred suddenly at Deer Lodge at 7:15 o'clock last evening. Mrs. Furay was a sister-in-law of Mrs. Dr. A. H. Mitchell of Deer Lodge, Mrs. D. G. Brownell of Anaconda, and Thomas H. Irvine, sheriff of Ravalli county, and of Bryan Irvine, Mrs. Nannie H. Jones and Mrs. George W. Irvine of Butte, all of whom were with her during her illness and were at her bedside when death came. The funeral will take place from the Episcopal church at Deer Lodge Monday at 1 p. m.

GENIUS, ART, BEAUTY

Wonderful Collection of Portraits of Celebrated Actors and Actresses.

TALENTED MEN AND WOMEN

How Readers of "The Standard"
May Secure the Marie
Burroughs Art Portfolio.

Do you go to the theater? Nearly everybody does, although tastes in regard to the plays that are admired are varied. Some go to have their feelings harrowed up by great tragedians, who portray the mystic moods of the melancholy Dane, the venom of the Venetian Jew or the passionate jealousy of the noble Moor. Others prefer the dramas of modern life and character or the piquant plays that deal with social follies and intrigues. A very large class wants melodrama, with hissing engines, buzzing sawmills, bearded villains and blonde heroines. Other tastes are for farce comedy, comic opera, hearty laughs, mirthful music and pretty girls. But, allowing for varied tastes, there is no question of the popularity of the stage as an institution.

This general interest in the stage extends to the personality of the leading people, who are much discussed in the newspapers, besides being a favorite subject of private conversation. Photographs of great actors, actresses and singers are always in demand, and never more so than now, and therefore the offer made to readers of the STANDARD in to-day's advertising columns will be regarded as timely as well as in the highest degree attractive.

An Artistic Production.

The "Marie Burroughs Art Portfolio of Stage Celebrities" is a most artistic production. The portraits are veritable gems of photography, the latest and best of the various subjects, and many of them the result of special sittings made expressly for this work.

They are produced in the best manner in artistic sittings, and are worthy a prominent place in any collection of works of art, however exclusive.

Miss Marie Burroughs, the presiding genius of this artistic feast, is herself one of the greatest of the younger generation of leading actresses of the day. Supporting E. S. Willard as leading lady she has gained a prominent place among the exponents of dramatic art and created the leading roles in many famous plays. She is represented in the first part of the portfolio by a tinted photograph of specially artistic treatment.

The portfolio of stage celebrities is just what its name implies, a collection of photographs of all the more noted people of the stage. All tastes, except depraved ones, have been consulted in the selection of the artists whose portraits are given, and the stars of tragedy, comedy, grand and light opera, farce comedy and burlesque are all included. There will be 12 parts, each part containing 20 photographs. Procured in the ordinary way the cheapest of the photographs would cost 50 cents—many of them could not be obtained at all. To the readers of this paper 20 of them are offered for one dime. This offer is intended only for our readers, and therefore the requirement is made that the 10 cents for each part shall be accompanied by three coupons of different dates clipped from this paper. This is the only way in which these interesting art gems can be procured.

Sketches of the Subjects.

With each photograph there is a brief but carefully written sketch of the artistic career of the person portrayed, making the portfolio, in addition to its attractions as a work of art, a valuable handbook of information regarding the celebrities of the stage. The great interest of this collection of photographs of noted people will undoubtedly create a big demand for it. No person feeling the slightest interest in dramatic and musical celebrities can fail to find pleasure in perusing it, and it will also prove valuable as a means of entertainment to visitors who have an eye for art.

The STANDARD is prepared to fill the orders of its readers for this attractive work, either made personally or by mail. Ten cents and three coupons, no extra charge for postage on mail orders, secures part I, which will be ready on Monday next, containing the tinted photographs of Miss Burroughs and 20 photographs of other stage celebrities, the list being published in the large advertisement in this issue.

The STANDARD always gives its readers the best, and never made an offer more attractive than this one, which, although low in price, is high in artistic merit. You want it, sure. Save your coupons.
